Pirates Rally in Ninth to Trim Giants—Yankees Trounce Browns in Tenth—Dodgers Lose Four Homers in Two Innings

Thrill 40,000 at Polo Grounds

Twelve Runs Tallied in Eighth and Ninth Sessions by Two Clubs; Contest a Pitching Duel in Early Rounds Between Jess Barnes and Wilbur Cooper

By Charles A. Taylor

The Pittsburgh Pirates pounded their way to victory over the Giants vesterday afternoon before a throng of 40,000 fans, who were turned into maniacs on occasions without number, and it is doubtful if some of them ever will fully recover. The score which spelled the downfall of the Mc-Graw men was finally figured out to be 8 to 0.

of games played, won and lost,

Of the fourteen runs scored twelve came into being in the last two innings, when the bats of both teams rang so viciously that home runs began to be regarded as time savers merely. There were four of these circuit smashes in these two final stanzas, George Burns and Frank Snyder doing the heavy cannonading for the Giants and George Whitted and Max Carey performing just as brutally for the Pirates.

This home run business is being carried too far, with all due respect to the thrills and chills the big blows bring. The Ancient Order of Ball Bangers used to be a rather exclusive organization. Babe Ruth, it would seem, gave out the password most promiscuously, for now "everybody is But it must be said right here that the forty thousand who saw this first encounter of the two leaders in the National League yesterday get much for the forty thousand who were driven away from the gates by the mounted police they deserve reams of pity, Some time, perhaps, a ball park will be built of sufficient size to accommodate all comers, but the time is not yet. Started as Pitching Duel

What a ball game! It started as a pitching battle between Jess Barnes, of ours, and Wilbur Cooper, of the Buccaneers, but it ended in a rout for Jess, while Wilbur virtually staggered off the field with his triumph, so hard had been his lot.

The fates smiled their kindligst on fates smiled their kindliest on

The fates smiled their kindliest on the Giants during the first seven innings and the home boys had amossed a 2 to 0 lead when George Gibson called his heavy artillery into play. In the first inning George Burns hit Copper's first toss for a double to center. Dave Bancroft bunted and was safe when George furnished Runs soing to third.

Bancroft bented and was safe when Cooper fumbled, Burns going to third.
Fordham Frisch brought George across the plate with a long fly to center. In the seventh Kelly led off with a stinger to left, and after two men had been retired Long George tallied on Snyder's drive to left, which Bigbee misjudged.

tallied on Snyder's drive to left, which Bigbee misjudged.

The Pirates in the meantime were unable to worry a run out of Barnes, although they filled the bases in the seventh. It was the comedian Rabult Maranville who had his big chance here, but with three of his pals fairly aching to get home all the Rabbit did was to pop out to Bancroft. But the end was not yet. In fact, there never seems to be any let-up in this fighting band of Pirates.

Cutshaw Starts Fireworks

Cutshaw Starts Fireworks

The eighth was opened by George Cutshaw, formerly of Flatbush, who had already accumulated a double and and aiready accumulated a double and a single. Cutshaw singled once more and then George Whitted tied the score with a savage liner into the lower tier of the right field stand. Slim Sallee was rushed to the mound by J. J. Mc-Graw and Slim checked the onslaught for the time.

In the Giants' half of this same eighth, George Burns put his team once more into the lead with a smash into the left field bleachers. But nobody else could do a thing with Mr. Cooper's slants.

And so the ninth opened with the Glants one run to the good, but my, oh, my, what a slugfest those Brigands ed in their final stand. Bigbee to right for one base, Max Carey met one of Sallee's hooks Wisler. Post and Mattox; Schuiz, and drove the ball far into the left field Olsen and Nickergoli, and Prediger of the whole Pirate bunch was there to greet him.

Rabbit Maranville drew a base on balls and scored on Cutshaw's double to left. Whitted sacrificed and Cutshaw counted on Tierney's single to center. Fred Toney was now pitching for the Giants. Grimm hit safely to left and Tierney scored on Skiff's sacrifice fly to Young. Grimm sped over with the sixth run of the inning on Cooper's double to left.

The Giants put over a little rally of their own in their half of the ninth, but it was too little. Kelly opened on Cooper with a single to right and went to third on King's double to left. Brown, batting for Rapp, fouled out, but then Snyder banged the ball into the left field bleachers and three Giants pattered over the rubber amid the tumult of the multitude. But Alphonse Gaston, hitting for Toney, fanned, and Burns ended the game by fouling to Grimm.

Frisch the Fielding Hero Fordham Frisch was the fielding hero of the day with his wonderful scoopup of Skiff's hot grounder in the seventh. Frisch missed what would have been a most amazing force-out at second by throwing wildly, but it is a wonder he was able to throw at all from the position he was in.

Shawkey Starts, but Receives Poor Support and Is Taken Out in Seventh

From a Special Correspondent ST. LOUIS, May 22 .- The Yankees hammered their way to victory over the Browns here this afternoon, carrying the fight through ten innings before the fight through ten mashes that put they delivered the smashes that put they delivered the smashes that put over the winning run. Taking the lead twice in the earlier frames, they frittered away their advantage, making errors at those times when the Browns were hitting. But in the end the power of their batting could not be denied. The score was 6 to 5.

Carl Mays and Aaron Ward got together in the tenth and won the game. With one out, Ward tripled off the centerfield stands, and Schang, bidding for a base hit, lined to Smith. Mays then came up, and hit into left field, Ward crossing the plate.

Once established in the lead, Mays pitched his usual brand of ball in the tenth inning, and the Browns went out in order. Mays came on the scene in the seventh inning. Bob Shawkey started the game for New York, his first effort since April 27, when he hurled against the Senators on the Polo Grounds.

During the first four innings Shawkey looked good. He were sinked.

Polo Grounds.

During the first four innings Shawkey looked good. He was nicked for hits here and there, but managed to extricate himself from most of the tough situations. Handicapped by errors, however, he finally had to give up. The Yankees hammered Shocker with greater case than is usual.

Yanks Score in Second The Yanks got busy again in the sec-nd inning. Ward hit one through the ond inning. Ward hit one through the infield for a base hit, and ran to second when Williams juggled the ball for a while. Schang walked, and Shawkey moved his comrades along with a sacrifice. Mitchell then whaled a long fly to williams scoring Ward, but Schang Williams, scoring Ward, but Schang was caught in a run-up and finally retired, thus ending the inning.

Scoring activities were resumed in the fifth, with both teams taking a hand. Schang started for the Yankees with a hard hit single to left center. to the left field fence. Schang scored from first.
Tired of trailing in the pastime, the Browns got to Shawkey in the fifth and tied the score. Urban Shocker opened with a single and went to third on Tobin's double into the left field crowd. Gerber rolled to Mitchell and Shocker was out at the plate on a fine play by the young second sacker. Sisler singled, worker Tobin. scoring Tobin. Severeid's single put Gerber over the plate.

Meusel Clouts Home Run

In the seventh the Yankees took what looked like a winning lead. Peck singled with one out and Ruth struck out. Pipp rammed a single to right field, and Meusel hit the ball out of the lot by way of the left field fence for a home run, putting the New Yorkers three runs to the good.

Thanks to some lusty whacking and ome bad errors, the Browns were able to knot up the count again in the sevanth inning. They scored three runs on a single by Sisler, an error by Roth, nother misplay by Peck, twe triples by evereid and Smith and Jacobson's sacistics fix. Coveleskei Blanks Red

The much discussed question of what Suits and overcoats in a range of sizes that makes it The much discussed question of what chance a first-class woman player, such as Mile. Lenglen, would have against a top-notch male player seemingly was exemplified to-day when Tilden met Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory. The American champion handicapped himself in the game, but nevertheless he won handily, 6—3.

Afterward Tilden and Mrs. Mallory played against Miss Sigourney and a member of the French team, winning 6—2, 6—0. J. E. D. Jones and Arnold Jones later played Tilden and Mrs. Mallory a hard game, winning 8—6. The good showing of the Jones combination was largely due to the improved
